"Nothing Ventured, Nothing Won."

"I declare to man, I won't stand it no longer!"

Miss Celosia Clematis looked as belligerent as a setting-hen, when the privacy of her nest is invaded.

"It's a-goin' on nine years now that I've kep' house fur Brother Ben an' his family, an' Joanna ain't never give me so much as a Christmas-gift even. Reckon she thinks my board is enough pay fur gitting up of mornings an' cookin' breakfast, summers an' winters, rain or shine, besides doing the washing, ironing, mending and baking; an' twelve in the family, besides a hired hand. But if she thinks so, I don't. Why, I might as well of married Pete Stebbins an' his 'leven, when he first asked me' after his second wife died. But la! I wouldn't have him then, nor I won't now. It's about time fur him to be a-renewin' his offer, like he does every year; but he won't git nothing only no for his answer, if he offers from now till kingdom come!"

Miss Celosia was strong-minded. Needless to add she was "getting along" in years. That is to say she was thirty-five or thereabouts; but her bright eyes and fresh complexion gave her the appearance of being ten years younger at least.

"I won't stand it, not another day longer!" went on Miss Celosia. "Joanna gets lazier and lazier every day; a-laying in bed till breakfast is half-eat sometimes, an' not purtending even to help with the patching an' darning. There's Ben's blue ducking overhauls jest a-goin' to rags, but I ain't a-goin' to mend 'em. I've patched the last patch an' darned the last darn I 'low to in this house. I'm sorry fur Ben, though, but it'll be better fur him an' the children, too, if Joanna has to stir herself a little. She won't have so much time fur fault-finding. I've been a fool fur nine years, but I ain't a-goin' to be one no longer."

And haying twisted her black hair in a tight knot on the top of her head, and tied a clean apron around her waist, Miss Celosia assumed her most resolute expression and walked into the dining-room where her sister-in-law was sitting, with the breakfast dishes still ungathered on the table.

"Dear me Celoshy!" she grumbled, fretfully, "if you hain't got on your best calico frock an' cross-barred apron. Here, 'tis Monday, too, an' nothin' a-goin' not even the wash-b'iler put over to heat. What on airth be you a-thinkin' of, I'd like to know?"

"I'll tell you what I'm a-thinkin' of, Joanna," returned Miss Celosia composedly. "I'm tired of workin' an' slavin', fur no thanks an' my board. If I can't earn nothin' more'n my vittles an' houseroom a-workin', I'm a-goin' to quit—that's what."

"Wall, I declare!" cried her sister-in-law, astounded at what she heard.

"An' I'm a-goin to see if I can't do better fur myself than I'm a-doing here," continued Miss Celosia, frankly.

"Oh, so you're a-goin' to marry Pete Stebbins' an' his 'leven young ones, after all your fine talk, be you," sneered Joanna, spitefully.

"No, I hain't. He hain't asked me this year yet, an' if he did, I wouldn't," was the emphatic reply, if not very lucidly-stated answer. "But I'll tell you what I am a-goin' to do, Joanna. I've got a little money, two hundred dollars or so, that I let Ben have the use of, when I come here to live. He promised to give it back to me when I wanted it. So, I'm a-goin' to take that, an' rent me a little house an' a patch of ground, an' go to raisin' truck for the market. There's plenty of men-folks makes a livin' at it, an' women has jest as much right to be gardeners as men."

"Humph! You'll be glad enough to quit it, an' come back to us, when you've lost your two hundred dollars, I kin tell you. Better not risk it."

But Miss Celosia was not to be disuaded.

"Nothin' venture, nothin' have," she declared, stoutly.

And so the house was rented—a bit of a cottage, with an acre or so of ground, and furnished with some pieces of cast-off furniture, to which Miss Celosia had fallen heir in various ways—an old fashioned wooden-dresser, a faded rag carpet, six split-bottomed chairs, and a high-posted, cord bedstead.

And having purchased a few needed articles, together with a good stock of provisions, she took possession, as happy and independent as if she were the Sovereign of all the Russias, or any place else.

"And now," she commented, as she sat down to her cozy supper of tea and warm biscuits, chipped beef and raspberry-jam, "now let me see. First, I must have a cow, and some black Spanish hens. 'Tain't like to do without milk and eggs. Besides, I can make butter to sell, and if my hens lay good, I can sell eggs, too. Then I must git the ground broke up. That'll cost something, but it can't be helped. An' then there'll be garden-seeds to buy. I can do the planting, hoeing and weeding myself. I'll git Eph Boyers to do the plowing; an' I'll make out a list to-night of what seeds I want, and git 'em right away, so's I can plant 'em, soon as the ground's ready."

And that night, Miss Celosia sat up until some unheard-of hour, quite unusual to her, looking over various seed-catologues, and debating the relative merits of snowflake and early-rose potatoes, dwarf and marrow-fat peas, six week and 'german wax-beans, mammoth sugar-corn, blood-beats and ox-heart cabbage, short horn carrots and butterhead lettuce.

Her list was finally made out, however, including several choice varieties of cauliflower and celery, cucumbers, egg-plant and spinach.

And with a tired frame, but an approving conscience, Miss Celosia sought a few hours of repose on her comfortable cord-bedstead, only to awaken when the first pink rays of the morning sun crept in through the shining panes of her little east window.

The ground was duly broken up and harrowed by Eph Boyers and his yoke of oxen, and a little more help from Eph himself with the spade and hoe. Miss Celosia got to her planting.

The first pink rays of sunlight never caught her abed now. She had her breakfast over by daylight, and long before sunrise she was at work in her "truck patch."

But gardening is hard work, and in spite of her most indefatigable efforts, the weeds would slip in here and there among her crops; and the fox-tail grass persisted in growing faster than cucumbers and squashes.

Then, the weather was not always to be relied on implicitly, and her first planting of mammoth sugar-corn rotted in the ground.

Miss Celosia bought more seed, and replanted. This time the crows pulled up two-thirds of it as soon as it had sprouted. Again she replanted put up a "scare-crow," and this time the corn grew rapidly.

Miss Celosia hoed it carefully and laboriously, giving a sigh of relief when she was through, for hoeing corn is hard work.

And the very next night Farmer Hodson's pigs found their way into the patch through a gap in the fence made by a defective rail, and destroyed at least half the corn, and all the butter-headed lettuce.

Miss Celosia was almost in despair, but she replanted the corn and lettuce with later varieties, and worked away early and late, harder than any farmer of them all.

But somehow or other fate, or fortune, or the weather, or all three combined, seemed adverse to Miss Celosia's success in "truck raising."

The rabits eat up her early peas and cabbages, the striped-bugs killed her cucumbers and cassava musk melons; garden fleas devoured her purple strap-leaf turnips and rutabagas; and the squash-bugs destroyed her young crook-necks and Boston marrows quashes. The cut-worms severed the stalks of her thrifty tomatoes; and the hawks, foxes, 'possums, weasels and other "varmits" feasted on her black Spanish hens and fat spring chickens.

Then the cow took to jumping into Farmer Hodson's clover-field, and he threatened to shoot her if her mistress didn't keep her out.

This was the last in the catalogue of mishaps, and like the oft-quoted camel, Miss Celosia broke down under it.

"What's a lone woman a-goin' to do, I'd like to know," she demanded, wrathfully, in a private interview with herself, "when the weeds, an' the bugs an' the varmits are all in league agin' 'em? An' now my two hundred dollers is gone an' I hain't raised garden truck enough to do me over winter, let alone havin' any to sell. An' how Joanna will laugh!

"I almost wish now I'd—No, I don't either. I don't wish I'd married Pete Stebbins, an' went to be stepmother to them 'leven children. He's shiftless. But I won't go back to Ben's, that's certain! I'll hire out first, or go an' house-keep fur somebody that'll pay me, an'—"

"How-de-do, Miss Celoshy—how-de-do?" cried a hearty voice.

And there was Mr. Phoebus Filbert standing in the doorway, with a friendly smile on his cheerful face.

Mr. Filbert was a good-looking, well-to-do bachelor, of about forty summers and winters alternately, but like Miss Celosia, he looked ten years younger.

He was a neighbor and intimate friend of her brother Bens, and had seemed almost like a brother to herself in the old days before she had set out to mend her fortune by vegetable raising.

"And how do you git along with your truck Miss Celoshy?" he asked with interest. "You must let me see your garden."

"I shan't!" declared the lady, flatly. "It's full of weeds an' grass—I couldn't keep 'em out. An' Farmer Hodson is a-goin' to shoot my cow, if I don't keep her out of his clover-field. An' how does he 'spect I can keep her out, I'd like to know, when he can't?"

"Sho, now! Why, that's too bad!" Mr. Filbert looked as amazed and sympathetic as if he hadn't heard the whole story beforehand.

"But I tell you what 'tis, Miss Celoshy!" he added, gravely. "You'll hev to git married, and that's the hull of it!"

"I shan't!" declared Miss Celosia. "I've said I wouldn't marry Pete Stebbins if he offered till kingdom come, an' I shan't—so there!"

"Who said anything about Pete Stebbins?" demanded Phoebus. "I didn't. I want you to marry me—not him!"

"You!" Miss Celosia stared incredulously at her visitor.

"Yes—me!" repeated, Phoebus, stoutly. "I'm tired of keepin' bach, an' I reckin you air about tired of raisin' truck—"

"Yes, I be!" declared Miss Celosia, emphatically. "I don't never want to tech a hoe nor drop a row of corn the longest day I live!"

And so Miss Celoia's venture turned out a success after all.

HE HAD THEM ON.

Not long ago, in one of the Paris police-courts, a workman accused of stealing a pair of trousers was discharged, after a long and patient investigation, on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to establish hisguilt. He remained seated, however, on the prisoner's bench after his acquittal had been announced. The lawyer who had conducted his case, observing that he did not move, informed him that he was free to go about his business, if he had any. He shook his head slightly but did not budge. By this time, no other case being on hand, the court-room was nearly empty. Again addressing him his defender inquiried, with some irritation:

'Why the deuce do you not get up and go?'

'Step this way a moment, please,' said the stead fast sitter, 'and let me whisper in your ear. I can't go until all the witnesses for the prosecution leave the court.'

'And why not, may I ask?'

'Because of the stolen trousers. Don't you understand?'

'Most assuredly I do not understand. What about the stolen trousers?'

'Only this—I've got 'em on!'

A large number of convicts have escaped from the plantations where they are hired out near Vicksburg, Miss., and are hiding in the swamps and committing extensive depredations The negroes are kept in a state of constant dread, and labor in the fields is almost suspended.

The First Inauguration.

William Dunlap, the artist, graphically described the appearance of Washington and other dignitaries at the first inauguration. The oath was administered on the balcony of Federal Hall, in Wall street, New York, where a statue of Washington now marks the spot. This building had been erected for the accommodation of Congress under the direction of Major L'Enfant, a French officer of engineers, who afterwards planned the city of Washington. In front of the balcony were the volunteer companies of militia in full uniform, with a large concourse of citizens. Gen. Washington is described as having worn that day a plain suit of broad cloth, coat, waistcoat and breeches of home manufacture, even to the buttons, on which Rollinson, an engraver, had portrayed the arms of the United States. White silk stockings showed the contour of a manly leg; and his shoes, according to the fashion of that day, were ornamented with buckles. His head was uncovered and his hair dressed and powdered, for such was the universal custom at that time. Thus was his tall, fine figure presented to our view at the moment which forms an epoch in the history of nations. John Adams, a shorter figure, in a similarly plain dress, but with the (even then) old-fashioned Massachusetts wig, stood at Washington's right hand, and opposite to the President-elect stood Chancellor Livingston in a full suit of black, ready to administer the prescribed oath of office. Between them was placrd Mr. Otis, the Clerk of the Senate, a small man, bearing the Bible on a cushion. In the background of this picture and in the right and left compartments formed by the pillars stood the warriors and sages of the Revolution.

When all was ready Gen. Washington stretched fourth his right hand with that simplicity and dignity which characterized all his actions, and placed it on the open book. The oath of office was read, the Bible was raised and he bowed his head upon it, reverentially kissing it. The Chancellor then made proclamation, "God save George Washington, President of the United States of America." A shout went up from the multitude, cannons were fired near by, the music played and every one appeared delighted.

Dis Ignoble Guv'ment.

He wasn't a member of the Lime-Kiln Club, but he had a whole wheelbarrow full of philosophy and logic under his ancient-looking plug hat as he entered the Post Office and said he would like to rent a box. The clerk was ready to accommodate him, when the applicant said:

'De terms am cash, I spose?'

'Yes sir.'

'Is dar any trust?'

'No, sir; you must pay quarterly in advance.'

'Jes so, sah. Make out a deed of dis yere box an' your quarter am ready.'

'The price is twenty shillings per quarter or three months,' explained the clerk.

The colored gentleman fell back at the rate of a mile a minute, but slowly advanced, after recovering from the shock of surprise and repeated:

'Twenty shillings ebery free months and no trust?'

'The same.'

The man took from his coat-tail pocket a broken two-foot rule and measured the dimensions of the box. Then shutting up the rule he swelled out and exclaimed:

'Does dis pos' office take me for a fool? Does dis ignoble guv'ment imgine dat I'se gone crazy, sah?'

'I guess not.'

'Den why, sah, does dis ignoble guv'ment try to rob me, sah. Look at de ideah! I kin rent a hull hoss barn on Indiana street for $2 a month, sah, ann yet dis ignoble guv'ment axes me to pay twenty shillings a quarter for a pos' office box not as big as one end of a manger! I wasn't born in the woods, sah,—no, sah—an' you kin keep dat box, sah, and dis ignoble guv'ment kin pass my letter frew de winder, sah!'—Detroit Free Press.

SOMETHING TO CRACK.

BY N. Y. ACKER.

Last Friday I brought home some hickory nuts, and on Saturday afternoon Mrs. Acker suggested the propriety of having some cracked for Sunday's use.

I brought out the hammer and a smoothing iron, and at them went.

The first one I opened with ease and grace of a French dancing-master.

The second proved refractory, and at the first blow flew off at a tangent, taking Mrs. Acker a clip over her left eye.

She jumped up, and knocked the dish of nuts off the chair, while she waltzed around with the corner of her apron to her eye, complimenting me in strong terms on the remarkable faculty which I displayed for nut cracking.

These highly eulogestic remarks were so flattering that for a moment I forgot the smoothing-iron, and down it tumbled on the cat's tail, causing it to add high-toned remarks in cat language almost as sweet and flattering as those of my spouse.

As I rose to explain, the nuts, strewn upon the floor, made roller skates for my feet, and not being much accustomed to skating, I sat down gracefully and gently, mashing the spitoon with the back of my head, and there I lay quietly, calmly drinking in the words of wisdom, which rolled in eloquent streams from the tongue of my bosom partner on the matter of carelessness in handling hickory nuts.

At length quiet reigned; the nuts and myself were gathered up, Mrs. Acker had finished her discourse, and was seated, while the cat was nursing her candad appendage on the rug.

I cautiously selected another innocent nut, and banged away with great success.

One, two, three, four victims more were led captive, crushed in spirit and in body, when courageously I took up the largest nut of them all and whanged away.

The first blow slid off like rain drops from the back of a greased pig, and stopped on the right corner of my knee.

This exasperated me, and I struck it another full blow, which fell upon the nail of my thumb. I grew desperate, and muttered:

'You won't, won't you!' while I battered away at it. 'We'll see, gol shives your hide, whether you are boss of this situation or I!'

Just here I summoned all my energies, and struck a furious blow, which crushed the nut and nearly tore the nail from my finger.

I slung down the hammer, striking the cat, and caused it to howl and tear around as furious as myself. To escape more of the same sort it stuck its head through a pane of glass and let its body follow with a whiz.

Again I gave a crack, so to speak. Up flew my heels and down crushed my head in a bedlam of sound, amid the flying of tinware, chairs, shoes, legs, arms and words not admissible in Lexiconic Orthography, because not found in the body of either Webster or Worcester.

At length Mrs. Acker managed to make herself heard, and she feelingly asked me if I was hurt.

I replied:

'Oh, no; of course not! I am practicing this howl for the next meeting of the choir, and I mashed my head, knee, thumb, and fingers in anticipation of the base ball season. Oh, no; of course I am not hurt in the least; the cat must be amused, you know; but you can finish mashing those goll slammed nuts or dump them into the stove, just as the notion strikes you, only don't let the hammer light on one of your digmits, or we'll have another circus performed to a limited audience.'

I gathered myself up, and trudged outdoors to cool off.

PERFECTLY SATISFACTORY.

A farmer's wife bustled into a store in a town up the Hudson, a few days ago, and went for the proprietor with: 'Mr. Davis, I bought six pounds of sugar here the other day, and when I got it home I found a stone weighing three pounds in the package!' 'Yes, ma'am.' 'Can you explain such a swindle, sir?' 'I think I can,' he placidly replied. 'When I weighed your eight pounds of butter the other day I found the three pound stone in the crock, and when I weighed your sugar the stone must have slipped into the scales. We are both growing old, Mrs. Jones, and I presume your eye sight has become more or less affected.' She looked at him for half a minute over her brass-bound spectacles, and then said she had three dozen eggs which she wanted to exchange for some hooks and eyes and red shirt buttons.

General News Condensed.

A well-known correspondent of several newspapers in America eloped with the young wife of an English Nobleman. Detectives tracked the fugitives to Brussels, but the scent was lost in that city and it is believed they have taken passage to the colonies. The lady is stated to be one of the most beautiful women in Europe, and the elopement is considered very incomprehensible by her relatives and friends. The journalist is old enough to be her father. The names are not made public.

Ex-United States Senator Nesmith, of Oregon, has become insane and has been placed in an asylum.

John W. Garrett, for many years President of the B. & O. R. R., died at his cottage at Deer Park, Md., in his 65th year.

Two more horse thieves were found hanging to a cottonwood tree on the Poplar river, Montana Ter. This makes thirty-three already hung by vigilants this season.

The Chinese Government has applied for 3,000 square feet for its display at the New Orleans Exposition.

Reports from 1,000 points in New England, Canada and New York show great injury to the potato crop from rot and grubs.

A heavy rain in the Miama valley relieved the longest drouth for years in that section of Ohio. It was the first rain since August 3.

In anticipation of a prolonged war with France, large shipments of provisions are being made to China. The Pacific Mail steamers during the past month carried from San Francisco 2,700 tons of flour alone.

Dan Gardner, a former resident of Pittsburg, but for a number of years a well-known citizen of Cleveland, shot his wife and then sent a bullet through his own brain.

Lesson About Diligence.

There was once a German duke who disguised himself, and during the night placed a great stone in the middle of the road, near his palace.

Next morning a sturdy peasant, named Hans, came that way with his lumbering ox-cart.

"Oh, these lazy people!" said he. "There is this big stone right in the middle of the road, and no one will take the trouble to take it out of the way."

And so Hans went on his way, scolding about the laziness of the people.

Next came a gay soldier along. He had a bright plume waving from his helmet, and sword dangling by his side, and went singing merrily on his way. His head was held so far back that he didn't notice the stone, so he stumbled over it. This stopped his song, and he began to storm at the country people, and call them "boors and blockheads, for leaving a huge rock in the road for a gentleman to fall over." Then he went on.

Next came a company of merchants with pack-horses and goods, on their way to the fair that was to be held at the village, near the duke's palace. When they came to the stone, the road was so narrow that they had to go off in single file on either side. One of them, named Berthold, cried out:

"Did anybody ever see the like of that big stone lying here all the morning, and no one stopped to take it away?"

It laid there for three weeks, and nobody tried to remove it. Then the duke sent around word to all the people on his lands to meet at a deep cut in the road, called Dornthou, near where the stone lay, as he had something to tell them.

The day came, and a great crowd gathered at the Dornthou. Each side of the cut was thronged with people overlooking the road. Old Hans, the farmer, was there, and so was Berthold, the merchant.

And now a winding horn was heard, and the people all strained their necks and eyes toward the castle, as a splendid cavalcade came galloping up to the Dornthou. The duke rode into the cut, got down from his horse, and, with a pleasant smile, began to speak to the people thus:

"My friends, it was I who put this stone here three weeks ago. Every passerby has left it just where it was, and has scolded his neighbors for not taking it out of the way."

When he had spoken these words, he stooped down and lifted up the stone. Directly underneath it was a round hollow, lined with white pebbles, and in the hollow lay a small leather bag. The duke held it up, that all the people might see what was written on it. On a piece of paper, fastened to the bag, were these words, "For him who lifts up the stone." He untied the bag, and turned it upside down, and out fell a beautiful gold ring and twenty large, bright, golden coins.

Then everybody wished that he had moved the stone, instead of going around it, and only blaming his neighbors. They all lost the price because they had not learned the lesson or formed the habit of helpfulness. And we shall loose many a prize, as we go on in life if we don't form this habit. The bag of money was the duke's promise of a reward for helpfulness. But the promise was hidden away under the stone so that no one could see it.

The False Prophets again.

The old prophecy of the Republicans that if Cleveland should be elected, work would cease and wages be reduced, &c., is again proclaimed through out the land. They are trying to throw sand into the eyes of the laboring man so that he shall be blind enough to vote for their tatooed candidate. But that game is played out. The working class have experienced that those threats of the republican leaders are false and that by voting with the party in power they only help to make the rich richer and the poor poorer. The present condition of industrial affairs is sufficient to show the poor working man that they were fooled by the sweet promises of the republican party in 1880 and they will take good care not to believe the same promises of those sly politicians. They are fully aware of it by this time that the Democratic party has the interests of the workingman at heart and that the honeyed words they hear from the Republicans are only a bait to get their votes with a selfish view of personal gains afterwards. The Blaine people are false prophets and the thousands of laborers out of work and food know it and are beginning to look for the buttered side of the bread.

A REPUBLICAN LIE NAILED.

The Republican managers hereabouts who are so anxious to elect their candidates to the Legislature to vote for a Republican United States Senator, have been quietly circulating the report that if Mr. WOODWARD and Mr. RHONE were elected they would vote for a bill requiring stock of all kind to be kept in enclosures. The following correspondence on that subject fully and effectually nails that lie:

SPRING MILLS, Centre county, Pa., September 25, 1884.

Leonard Rhone, Esq:

DEAR SIR—The report is being circulated throughout this section of the country that if elected Representative to our Legislature you will vote for a law requiring stock of all kind to be kept in enclosure—thus preventing poor people from pasturing their cattle on the mountains or unfenced parts of the country. We write to ascertain your intentions in this matter, and would be pleased to have your views on this subject plainly stated, and oblige,

Yours, very resp'y, &c.,
J. B. HECKMAN,
M. L. RISHEL.
I. J. GRENOBLE,
HENRY KRUMRINE.

CENTRE HALL, Pa., Sept. 29, 1884.

Messrs. J. B. Heckman, M. L. Rishel, I. J. Grenoble, Henry Krumrine and to all whom it may concern:

DEAR SIRS—Yours of the 26th inst. received, stating that it is being circulated that if I was elected Representative to our State Legislature, I would urge a law requiring owners to keep all kinds of stock in enclosures.

In my opinion such legislation would be objectionable to the majority of the people of Centre county, and would work a great hardship, as we have large commons in the county, rich with natural pastures, which would be an entire waste could they not be utilized by pasturing. Even many of our farmers, besides poor people, pasture their cattle on them without detriment to any one.

The laws of our State already provide that when cattle or other stock become dangerous or annoying to the public the owners must restrain them or be liable for all damages done by them.

If elected to the Legislature, I shall vote against and oppose to the best of my ability any law that directly or indirectly prevents our laboring men, farmers or others, from pasturing their stock on the mountains or unfenced lands of the county.

Very respectfully yours,
LEONARD RHONE.

SPRING MILLS, Centre county, Pa., September 25, 1884.

John A. Woodward, Esq.:

DEAR SIR—The report is being circulated throughout this section af the county that if elected Representative to our Legislature you will vote for a law requiring stock of all kind to be kept in enclosures — thus preventing poor people from pasturing their cattle on the mountains or unfenced lands of the county. We write to ascertain your intentions in this matter, and would be pleased to have your views on this subject plainly stated, and oblige,

Yours, very respt'y, &c.,
J. B. HECKMAN,
M. L. RISHEL.
I. J. GRENOBLE,
HENRY KRUMRINE.

HOWARD, Pa., Sept. 30, 1884.

Messrs J B Heckman, M L Rishel, I J Grenoble, Henry Krumrine,

GENTLEMEN—The report referred to in your kind favor of the 25th inst. is untrue. Possibly its origin may be found in the fact that I advocate and practice, as a matter of farm economy, the abandonment of inside fences, and the herding of stock when at pasture on the farm.

I regard public office as a public trust, to be administered in the interest and in compliance with the wishes of those by whom the trust is committed: and if elected to the Legislature, I shall faithfully try to perform the duties attaching to the position in accord with this view.

In my judgement such legislatiod as that to which you allude would be in opposition to the interest and wishes of a large majority of the citizens of the county. I shall therefore if it be presented vote against it.

Thanking you for calling my attention to the matter,

I am very truly,
JNO, A. WOODWARD.

THE two adresses published below make very interesting campaign reading, and we advise our republican as well as democratic readers to give this literature a careful perusal. After their reading they will hardly have any trouble to decide upon the political course.

THE New York Times, republican, recently remarked in one of its editorials, that if every citizen of the United States would read and understand the "Mulligan Letters," Blaine could not receive the electoral vote of a single state in the union.

ADDRESS OF THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE.

HEADQUARTERS NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE, 11 WEST 24TH ST., NEW YORK, Sept. 22nd, 1884.

To the People of the United States:

The National Democratic Party of the United States has pledged itself to purify the Administration of Public Affairs from corruption; to manage the Government with economy; to enforce the execution of the laws and to reduce taxation to the lowest limit consistent with just protection to American labor and capital, and with the preservation of the faith which the nation has pledged, to its creditors and pensioners.

The open record of the man, whom it has named as its candidate for the Presidency, has been accepted by thousands of independent Republicans, in every State, as an absolute guarantee that, if he is elected, all these pledges will be exactly fulfilled, and that, under his administration, good government will be assured.

To secure these results all good citizens must unite in defeating the Republican candidate for President. His history and political methods make it certain that his administration would be stained by gross abuses, by official misconduct and wanton expenditure of the public money, and would be marked by an increase of taxation which would blight the honest industry of our people.

Against us, and against those honorable Republicans who, for the sake of good government, have made common cause with us, notable combinations have been made.

These are chiefly made up of four classes.

First. An army of officeholders, who, by choice or compulsion, are now giving to Republican committees, as parts of the campaign fund of that party, money paid to such officers out of the Treasury for services due to the people of the United States.

Second. Organized bodies of men who, having secured by corrupt means the imposition of duties, which are in excess of all sums needed for the wants of the Government and for the protection of American labor and capital and having thus gained enormous wealth, are willing to pay largely to the Republican campaign fund for the promise of the continuance and increase of such duties which constitute a system of bounties to monopolies under the false pretense of protection to American industry.

Third. A host of unscrupulous contractors and jobbers, who have grown rich upon public plunder, and are ready to pay tithes of what they have acquired in order to avoid all risk of being called to account for the evil methods by which their wealth has been gained.

Fourth. Corporations which, having appropriated the public lands by the aid of corrupt agencies in the Republican party, believe they will be compelled to give up their ill-gotten gains if that party is driven from power, and are, therefore, willing to keep it in place by giving it a percentage of their unrighteous profits.

This committee has not troops of officeholders at its command.

It will not agree to sell the future legislation of Congress for money paid now into its party treasury.

It will not promise immunity to thieves.

It will not contract to uphold any corrupt bargain, heretofore made by the Republican party with any corporation, for all the wealth which such corporations can offer.

It appeals to the people against one and all of these opponents, thus corruptly banded together against the friends of good government.

The number of all these opponents is small, but their wealth is great, and it will be unscrupulously used. An active and vigorous campaign must be made against them. Their paid advocates must be met and defeated in debate upon the platform and in discussion in the newspapsrs. The organization of all who are opposed to them must be perfected in every State, city and county in the land. Money is needed to do this honest work. Your committee, refusing to adopt the methods by which the Republican party fills its treasury, calls upon all good citizens for the aid which is requires.

It invites, and will welcome, contributions from every honest man who is opposed to the election of James G. Blaine as President. No contribution will be accounted too small. Wherever a bank, banker, or postal money order office can be found, the means exist for placing at the disposal of the Treasurer of this committee, individual, or collective contributions in aid of the great cause in which we are engaged—or, money may be remitted by mail, to CHARLES J. CANDA, Treasurer, at No. 11 West 24th street, New York.

When victory is achieved over the unscrupulous combination, which is now endeavoring to thrust James G. Blaine into the Presidential office, the recorded list of such contributors will be a roll of honor, such as no other party in this country has ever possessed.

Our opponents cannot be saved from disaster by forcing their unwilling candidate to speak to assemblages of the people.

The man who wrote the Fisher letters will never be the choice of the people for the Presidency of the United States. ARTHUR P. GORMAN, Chairman Democratic National Executive Committee.

Address of the Independent Republicans of Philadelphia.

The association of Republicans and Independents of Philadelphia, of which Henry C. Lea is president and Lincoln L. Eyre, secretary, has issued the following address to the voters of this state, in which it gives its reasons for voting against Blaine and urges the pnblic to follow suit:

To the Voters of Pennsylvania:

The settlement of the question arising from the war, as admitted by the Republican presidential candidate, gives to thoughtful voters the opportunity of casting aside the dead issues of the past and of acting on the living issues of the present and the future.

These issues are partly material and partly moral. On questions of material policy the attitude of the two great parties is neither clearly defined nor antagonistic. As regards the currency, much has already been settled rather through the force of circumstances than by the foresight of either of the parties, while both show equal reluctance to grabble with what remains. With respect to the tariff, we in no way recognize that protection is at stake in the present canvass in the sense in which the Republican managers would have us believe. The utterances of both parties in their respective platforms are so nearly identical that there can be found no definite contention between them. Besides, the power of the Executive to determine the revenue legislation of the country is too remote to render this a controlling factor in a presidential canvass. The decision rests with Congress and the intelligent voter can have no difficulty in separating his Congressional from his Electorial ticket and in thus satisfying his convictions in both directions. Many of the members of this Association are pronounced protectionists whose interests are largely dependent, as they believe, on the continued prosperity of the manufacturers fostered by the tariff, and they can recognize no danger to these interests from the success of the candidate of a party which in the last Session of Congress only showed in its efforts at tariff revision its own hopeless division on the subject, and was forced at Chicago to adopt an expression of policy so nearly akin to that of its rival. We, in Philadelphia, no longer ago than last February, had an example of the skill with which the tariff can be unfairly used by self-seeking politicians to frighten people to their support, and we do not propose so soon again to be deceived in the same manner.

As regards the reform of the Civil Service we see the same lack of distinction between the parties. To the independent members of both, it is an object of the most earnest solicitude, while by the working machine of both it is regarded with scarcely concealed aversion. If the distinguished Democratic author of existing legislation was proscribed by the Bosses of his own State for his leading position in the reform, on the other hand the Republican National Committee has been seeking every ingenious device whereby to evade the legal penalties of assessing office-holders, and it has recognized, as its representative in Virginia, Gen. Mahone, well known as one of the most reckless spoilsman of the age. The permanent establishment of the principle of this reform now depends mainly upon the faithful execution of the present law in letter and spirit. A President earnestly in its favor can infuse its spirit throughout the service; a President secretly opposed to it can render it virtually nugatory. It would therefore be impossible for any friend of the reform to justify the support of one who, like Mr. Blaine, as Speaker of the House, delayed its progress for years, when, to use the language of the New York Tribune, of June 19, 1874:

"Mr. Blaine with 'distinguished ability,' appointed a committee on the subject (civil service reform) which strangled the reform and scalped it, and then executed a war dance over it." No stronger contrast can be presented than that which exists between his record on this subject and that of his principal opponent, who has been the faithful and efficient promoter of the reform and has not hesitated for its sake to alienate powerful sections of his own party, from whose hostility thus aroused the Republicans draw their strongest hopes for success in the pending election.

Not the least of the material interests involved in the canvass are those which would be at the mercy of the foreign policy of the Executive if it should fall into the hands of Mr. Blaine. During the few months in which, three years ago, he occupied the Department of the State, he developed a brilliant incapacity, which is full of pregnant warning for the future. We need only refer to his neglect to vindicate the rights of American citizens imprisoned abroad without trial, while inviting a rebuff from England by his blunders over the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty; to his uncalled for interference with Mexico about the Gutemala boundary, resulting in another and even more decided rebuff; and to his converting his high office into a claim-agency for adventures in his guano policy with unhappy Peru. With an intellect so unbalanced at the head of affairs, the country could never feel secure that it might not at any moment find itself involved in complications rendering war virtually unavoidable, and all industrial and mercantile interests would suffer incalculably from this prolonged and continued uncertainty.

Yet above all its importance is the issue which the Republican party raised when it nominated as its candidate a man convicted out of his own mouth of prostituting for gain the public trusts confided to him. We fail to see how any citizen can read the correspondence between Mr. Blaine and Mr. Warren Fisher, Jr., with the evidence taken by the Judiciary Committee of the Forty-fourth Congress, and not be convinced that Mr. Blaine was eager to sell his official position and use his official influence as Speaker of the House, in whatever manner might best serve his personal interests. Whether it was in Little Rock bonds, or a National bank charter, or a share in the Northern Pacific Railroad, he exhibited himself as an active trader whenever official influence was to be exchanged for money or money's worth. Nor was his position improved by his attempts at defence, consisting of falsehood, evasion, and refusal to explain on the ground that these were his "private affairs,"—as if the Speaker of the House of Representatives could have any "affairs" for acknowledgement and explanation. Conspicuous as he has been in Congress, Mr. Blaine's name is not prominently connected with a single act of well-devised statesmanship; he has risen from poverty to wealth on a meagre Congressional salary, and the revelations of his correspondence suggest the way in which that wealth has probably been acquired. These charges are directly relevant to his candidacy; they have not been newly sprung on the country for political purposes in the heat of a presidential campaign.

The nomination of such a man for the highest honor in the land is in itself a challenge to the conscience of every voter. It shows the degradation to which our political life has sunk when shrewd managers can persuade themselves that the American people are too obtuse to care for official integrity in their rulers. If that persuasion should be justified by success in November—if the people decide that a huckster of official influence shall occupy the chair of Washington, it is impossible to overestimate the lasting and deplorable influence which such an example will exert on the future of the nation. The Republican party triumphed because it was the party of moral ideas. It has now, by the selection of its standard-bearer become the party of immoral ideas, and only defeat can regenerate it.

This Committee has delayed its appeal to its fellow citizens to see whether any explanation of the charges against Mr. Blaine would be made which would relieve him from their weight, but the apologies offered thus far have only admitted the truth of the accusations, while seeking to extenuate them. Believing therefore that he is unfit for the lofty position to which he aspires, and that the ticket is not improved by the vice-presidential candidate, the Committee confidentially anticipates that the result of the canvass will show that the independent strength is sufficient either to force the Republican party to reform itself, or to justify the formation of a new organization which shall fitly represent the higher political aspirations which are to dominate the future.

Co-operation and correspondence are solicited from all citizens who share in these views.

By order of the Committee:
HENRY C. LEA,
President.
LINCOLN L. EYRE,
Secretary.

To Physicians.

We do not find fault, reproach or condemn the practice of any regular physician—this is not our mission—but we do claim that if he were to add PERUNA to his prescriptions, as directed in our book on the "Ills of Life," (and furnished gratuitously by all druggists), he would cure all his patients.

Mr. Henry C. Reynolds, Ironton, Lawrence County, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been sorely distressed for many years. Her disease or diseases and the symptoms of them have been so varied that an attempt to describe them would be more than I feel able to undertake. I have paid over a thousand (1,000) dollars for doctors and medicines for her, without any satisfactory results. We read so much about your PERUNA that I was forced to try it. She has now taken five bottles; they have done her more good than all the doctors and medicine that she has ever made use of. PERUNA is certainly a God-send to humanity."

Mrs. O. L. Gregory, Las Vegas, San Migvel County, New Mexico, writes: "I think PERUNA and MANALIN saved my life."

Mrs. Cora Engel, First House on Lazelle street, near Rich, Columbus, Ohio, says: "It affords me much pleasure to state to you the benefit I have received from your PERUNA. I had been troubled with kidney complaint and dizziness in my head for eighteen years. I tried different kinds of patent medicines, and consulted a number of physicians, but received no benefit whatever. About three weeks ago I commenced taking PERUNA. I began to get better before I had taken half a bottle. The dizziness has disappeared, and the other affection has so much improved that I am positive, after I will have taken another bottle, I will be entirely well. I feel like a different person already. A number of my friends have used it, and they think it is a wonderful remedy. My husband says it is one of the best medicines for a cough that he ever took."

A. W. Blackburn, Wooster, O., writes: "Several weeks ago a man came to me, all broken down, terribly nervous, stomach without any power to digest food. Had tried four doctors; none did him any good. Asked me to do something for him. I recommended MANALIN. He told me to-day that he has been taking it regularly, and is now almost well. Said he would sound the praises of MANALIN far and near."

—EMINENT PHYSICIANS connected with the principal hospitals throughout the United States report very gratifying and satisfactory results from the use of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier in all cases of vitiated blood, emaciated condition, enfeebled digestive power, malassimilation of food, &c. —The Misses Ida and Sadie Gutelius, of Mifflinburg, are spending several weeks with their cousin, Miss Lizzie Keen, near Millheim.

—The local, "The law permits the shooting of rabbits from Oct. 1 to Jan." in last week's JOURNAL should have read from Nov. 1 to Jan. 1.

—Mr. George Long of Fisher's Ferry, and a successful school teacher is visiting his brother, Mr. E. H. Long, at this place. Hope he will make a long stay.

—The attendance of our public schools is large, which proves that the proper interest is taken by the parents in the culture and education of their children.

—The time has come when people are depended on to vote for good honest government and not be controlled by shallow sentiment and noisy brag politicians.

—Miss Birdie Sweetwood, of Chicago, and Miss Aggie Murray, of Centre Hall, two very attractive young ladies, were the guests of Mrs. A. Alexander and daughters.

FOR SALE.—The undersigned has for sale a good stock of full-bred Chester White pigs, various sizes, at his premises at Aaronsburg, Pa.

J. H. MUSSER.

—We are informed that Miss Puella Dornblazer's lecture on Missions last Sunday forenoon in the Luth. church was a rare treat and resulted in the organization of a Woman's Missionary Society.

SALE OF HARNESS.—Messrs. Jon. & A. J. Harter will have public sale of harness at their store on Main street, on Saturday, October 11th. Make a note of it and attend it.

—Last Sunday evening the M. E. church of this place was crowded by a large congregation who attentively listened to one of Rev. Sarvis' able sermons. That gentleman began his protracted meeting which will last during this week and perhaps longer, according to the success of the revival.

—Adam Weaver, executor of the estate of Adam Weaver, late of Haines township, deceased, will make sale of the real estate and personal property of decedent, on Saturday, Nov. 1st, 1884. See notice on second page.

—Mr. D. B. Krape, of Salona, called on us last Friday, in company with Mr. E. Brumgard, whose guest he was for a few days. We understand that Mr. Krape is a first-class coachmaker and a fine musician. Glad to have you come again, gentlemen.

—It is believed that the coming winin Europe will be one of the hardest, in its sufferings by the poor, experienced there in centuries. The presence of cholera, and the lack of employment, will combine a frightful cause in their sufferings.

—Mrs. Jordan, wife of Adam Jordan residing in Haines township, on the mountains south of Aaronsburg, died on Friday morning after a protracted illness. The interment took place at the Reformed church at Aaronsburg on Sunday, October 5th.

—The Ladies Mite Society of the Aaronsburg Reformed church will hold a free entertainment in their church on Thursday evening of next week. The exercises will consist of music, essays, recitations, select reading, &c. All are cordially invited to attend.

—The valuable farm and timberland in Penn township, and hotel property in Millheim, of Jonathan Kreamer, deceased, will be offered at public sale on Saturday, Oct. 18th next by the executors of the estate, A. F. and J. H. Kreamer. See bills and advertisement in another column.

—We are requested to announce that Rev. Asper, of Maryland, will preach in the Lutheran churches of the Aaronsburg charge as follows: Penns creek, Saturday evening, Oct. 18th; Aaronsburg, Sabbath morning, Oct. 19th, 10 o'clock; St. Paul's afternoon, 2 o'clock and at Millheim on Sunday evening.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf

—D. M. Rockey, Administrator of the estate of Solomon Kleckner, late of Miles township, deceased, will make public sale of the real estate of the deceased, on Saturday, Oct. 11th. At the same time Mrs. Catherine Kleckner the widow of decedent, will offer for sale her personal property.

—Owing to the unfavorable weather last week the Union county fair was continued over Monday and Tuesday of this week, when the matchgame between the Lewisburg Saturday News team and the Mt. Carmel nine was played and the Bycicle race took place. Very many of our town folks attended the fair.

—Mr. Leonard Rhone one of the democratic candidates for legislature from this county, was in town last week and gave the JOURNAL a call. Mr. Rhone is a gentleman of decided ability and true democratic principles and will represent the people of this county in an energetic and successful manner. Let the democrats do all in their power to elect their ticket for assembly.

—Last Saturday Mr. Abs Musser, of Haines township, threshed 661 bushels of grain from 7½ o'clock in the morning to half past three o'clock in the afternoon, during which time the machine was moved and stopped five times. The work was done by Mr. Geo. W. Vonada with a 18 inch cylinder vibrator and separator and an eight horse power engine. Mr. Vonada is no green horn in the threshing business and has the boss machine.

—Under the heading of "Married" we publish this week two familiar names, that of Miss Clara E. Faust, the charming and accomplished daughter of Mr. S. K. Faust, who embarked on the matrimonial boat for the journey of life with Mr. Charles L. Grimm, the promising son of Mr. Reuben Grimm, of Madisonburg. We wish the couple a bright and happy future, with but few clouds to darken their domestic sky.

—Cassler & Bros'. new saw mill on Pine Creek is in first class trim and looks very clean and business-like. A fine new engine and new machinery has been placed into the substantial mill building and everybody's verdict is that it is one of the best equipped mills in this neighborhood. Mr. Cassler gave us the pleasant information that both their mills are in operation with enough orders to keep them going through the winter.

—DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned worm syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—On Tuesday morning Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Harter started for Bellefonte where they took the train for a tour through Ohio and a visit to relatives in that state. They were accompanied by their daughter Lizzie and by Mr. A. J. Harter and Miss Katie Harter as far as Bellefonte and expect to make about a two week's stay. Hope they will enjoy themselves in the Buckeye state.

—On Saturday, Oct, 25th, 1884, at two o'clock, p. m., the valuable farm in Penn township, of Daniel Kreamer, deceased, will be offered at public sale by the executor of the estate, Jas. P. Coburn. The farm contains about Two hundred and thirty acres, with two dwelling houses, large bank barn, small tenant house, wagon shed carriage house, corn cribs and other outbuildings thereon erected. This is one of the best and most desirable farms in the valley and purchasers will secure a very pleasant home.

HORSES.—Messrs. D. N. & H. J. App, of Selinsgrove, will have public sale of a car load of Extra Illinois Horses on Tuesday, October, 24th, at Musser's Hotel in Millheim. Farmers, horsemen and the general public are nrged to attend this sale, as this stock of horses is being brought direct from the best stock farms, where they were selected with great care by an experienced and reliable horseman. Among this lot will be 20 young Norman Horses, Match Teams and fine Brood Mares. The horses will arrive at Millheim a few days before the sale and purchasers can examine the stock before buying. Do not forget the date, Oct. 14th.

—The tenth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in Harrisburg, October 15th, 16th and 17th. Mrs. Mary A. Hunt, of Boston; Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, of Iowa; and Mrs. Mary Lowe Dickson, of New York; and other well-known speakers will be present.

The special line of work of this organization, for the coming year, is to secure a law requiring the "Effect of Stimulants and Narcotics upon the Human System," to be taught in all schools under State control.

—The woods near the Pine Creek school house were alive with people on Saturday, enjoying the picnic in the bracing October air. The weather looked threatening in the morning, but about eight o'clock the fog cleared away and gave place to the warm rays of the sun. At about 10 o'clock the Millheim Band came to the grounds and entertained the Sunday schools and turn-outs until the arrival of Revs. Yearick and Fisher, the speakers of the day. Both these gentlemen delived interesting addresses, full of instructions and encouragement to Sunday school workers. Mr. Kern was also called upon to make a speech and replied by a few remarks. Both the Liberty and Pine Creek schools interspersed the exercises by some excellent vocal music, rendered in a very creditable manner. The hour for dinner having come the programme of the of the forenoon was closed and preachers, scholars, musicians and spectators endeavored to do justice to the inner man, and by all appearances they succeeded. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in divers amusements and the band enlivened matters at intervals by some of their best productions. It was one of those picnics which leave pleasant memories in the minds of the attendants for some time to come.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchants to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless articles drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

MARTHA WASHINGTON SUPPER.—The ladies of the Reformed church of Aaronsurg cordially invite the public to supper on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening, October 17 and 18th, 1884. Oysters, ice cream, cake and other delicacies of the season will be served by ladies dressed in Martha Washington style on Friday evening; and on Saturday afternoon and evening "chickens and waffles" will be added to the bill of fare.

Various articles of clothing and fancy work, prepared by the sewing circle will, at the same time, be offered for sale.

The Millheim Band is invited to be present and and enliven the occasion with its excellent music.

The proceeds will be appropriated to the furnishing of the new church. Come one, come all!

NOTICE!—At a regular meeting of Millheim Borough School board held Oct. 6th 1884. The following resolution was adopted and placed upon the minutes: That

WHEREAS it is the custom in all places, where there is more than one school in the same building, that the teacher of the higher grade be regarded as principal of all the schools in the building, therefore—

Resolved, that Prof. P. J. Vonada be and is hereby regarded as principal of of the public schools of Millheim Borough. Also that

WHEREAS many of the pupils are at the school grounds long before the time of opening, and engage in sport and frequently in mischief while they could be at home engaged in something useful, Therefore

Resolved, that from and after the publication of this resolution the parents will see to it that their children remain at home until after the ringing of the first bell, and that the teachers of our schools are expected to enforce obedience to this rule by not allowing the pupils on or about the school grounds before the time above mentioned. By order of board.

Coburn Briefs.

The hunting season was inaugurated last week by a dozen of our best sportsmen, but who forgot to bring their game along home. Try again, boys.

Constable Ard escorted a prisoner to jail on Tuesday, charged with larceny.

Andrew Stover is now a resident of Coburn and occupies his new house.

Mrs. Warntz, of Woodward, has also moved here. We welcome these and all others who become our citizens.

Byron Houtz has gone South. He accepted a good position on a new railroad in Maryland.

A. J. Campbell and Dan'l. Eisenhuth have each built a stable since our last.

Rev. Stambach preached here last Sunday evening to a large audience.

Grain is coming slowly a 75 cents.

Our coal dealers have received their supply.

Coburn will yet have a brass band. About $170 has been offered the boys.

Our merchants are selling large quantities of good. Z.

Tight Lacing.

The Absurdity of the Custom as well as Its Effect upon the Health of Slaves to the Fashion.

There would be no tight lacing if girls could be made to understand this simple fact:—that men dread the thought of marrying a woman who is subject to fits of irritable temper, to bad headaches, and other ailments we need not mention, all of which, everybody knows, are the direct and inevitable product of the compression of the waist; men like to see a small waist, certainly; but there is great difference between the waist that is well formed and in proportion to the rest of the figure, and a waist which is obviously and artificially compressed, to the destruction of that easy and graceful carriage which is one of the chief charms of a woman's appearance. An unnaturally compressed waist is far more certain of detection than a mass of false hair or a faint dusting of powder. The rawest youth that enters a ball-room can pick out the women who have straightened themselves artificially.

If a young woman, to obtain the appearance of a dragon-fly, has been subjecting herself to considerable physical pain, and who has been laying up for herself a pretty store of ailments which only want time to pronounce themselves, could only see the stare of scarcely disguised contempt and understand the scornful pity which greets the result of her labor, we should have a change of fashion. Through all changes, women remain true only to one fashion; whether her clothing is as long and lank as that of a Grecian Virgin, or wether she builds around the lower half of her figure a rotund and capacious structure of steel, she is ever faithful to the tradition of a small waist; and she will weaken her circulation, she will incur headache, she will crack her voice and she will ruin her digestion, all to produce a malformation which wise men regard with pity and fools with derision.

The ladies can be fitted with a corset which will not compress the waist, but give support, health, and comfort to the body, and easy and graceful carriage to the appearance has been fully demonstrated by the celebrated philauthropist Mme. Dean, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who lately patented a corset which is a combination of shoulder-brace and spine-supporting corset, and while combining the benefits of both, is extremely simplified into a first-class corset. They are specially constructed with two curved springs so as to fit exactly on and support the shoulder-blades and another spring to support the spine. Made of the very finest tempered clock spring, thus creating a complete support for the spine and supplying a covering for the open space in the back, thereby protecting the spine from cold and giving a smoothness of fit to the back of the dress, making it a valuable and most necessary corset for general use. It has already received the highest commendations from the leading modistes, the fashionable dressmakers, and the most eminent physicians of the United States and Europe.

The Old Established Corset House of LEWIS SCHIELE & Co., 390 Broadway, New York, have been engaged to manufacture them, which is a guarantee that they will be made of the best material and workmanship. A reliable agent is wanted to introduce these goods in this county. For particulars see advertisement in another column.

'Squire Hering takes the cake with that 2½ lb. potato.

Some of our town folks were to the Union county fair last week, but unfortunately struck a disagreeable day.

Bartges and Condo were out squirreling one day last week and brought home—like all the rest "Nix kom raus!"

Mr. John A. Woodward, nominee for legislature, was in town on Saturday looking up his democratic friends and giving them a general shake.

Mr. A. Heckman and wife, from Ohio, left on Tuesday last for their home in the West. Mr. Heckman reports a nice time during his stay amoug us and has still a liking to old Centre. We would like to have you with us again, Andy.

On Sunday evening last, Miss Puella Dornblazer delivered a very able address on foreign missions, in the Lutheran church at this place. The house was crowded with eager listeners and active part was taken in the cause by a collection of over $37.

Our town was thrown into quite an excitement on Sunday afternoon over the runaway of J. C. Condo's horse. Mr. Condo had been to the meeting at the Reformed church and when at home and in the act of unhitching the horse became unmanageable, upsetting the buggy, started down the road at a furious rate. After running about two miles the horse was stopped in his wild career. Result—a wrecked buggy, but nobody hurt. PLAIN JACK.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. HAY-FEVER

Hay Fever

I have been a great sufferer from Hay Fever for fifteen years. I read of the many wondrous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known. Durhamel Clark, Farmer, Lee, Mass.

Ely's Cream Balm is a remedy founded on a correct diagnosis of this disease and can be depended upon. Cream Balm causes no pain. Gives relief at once. Cleanses the head. Causes healthy secretions. Abates inflamation. Prevents fresh colds. Heals the sores. Restores the senses of taste and smell. A thorough treatment will cure. Not a liquid or snuff. Applied into the nostrils. 50 cts. at druggists; 60 cts. by mail. Sample bottle by mail 10 cts.

Johnson's Witness.

A farmer named Johnson was on trial before a Detroit Justice the other day for assault and battery, and when the prosecution had finished he put a little old man of about 65 on the stand as a witness. The lawyer began :

'What is your name ?'

'If you'll tell me your name I'll tell you mine !' was the prompt answer.

'Where do you reside ?'

'I won't answer no such foolish question ! I've paid taxes in this county for fifty years, and I won't be talked to as if I was a child.'

'Well, Mr. Blank, you saw this difficulty, did you ?'

'If I hadn't seen it would I be here ? Do you 'spose I want to be arrested for forgery ?'

' How did it begin ?'

'How does anything begin ?' snapped the old man.

'Well, now, will you tell the jury all about it ?'

'No, sir, I won't ! If the jury want to know anythiug about it they must ask me.'

'You must answer the questions,' remarked his Honor.

'I will if I want to, but they haven't asked any questions yet.'

'Did the plaintiff and defendant have any hard words ?' asked the lawyer.

'I 'spose they did, but I wouldn't swear to it.'

'Did either one call the other a liar ?'

'I 'spose they did, and that's what brung on the fuss. I'm over sixty, but if any man calls me a liar I'm going to knock his durned head off !'

'Well, when the plaintiff called the defendant a liar, what was the result ?'

'Why, how do I know ?'

'Didn't you see a blow struck ?'

'Not there, but next day after this fuss I saw the purtiest fight in the world ! One of the Jones boys was—'

'Did you see any part of this fuss ?'

'No ! How could I when I was three miles away ; you ought to know better than to ask such foolish questions.'

'How did you hear of this difficulty ?'

'Mr. Johnson told me.'

'That will do—you can go.'

'But I agreed to come here for a dollar and swear, and I'm going to do it ! You needn't think you can doze bull me around because I'm old.'

A constable had to haul him out of the box and put him out of doors, but he wouldn't go away until he had put his head into the window and said :

'If you think I'm scart come out here and put a chip on your shoulder !'

Ventilation of School Rooms.

A school room that is solely independent upon open windows for ventilation is unfit for use during the greater part of the year. Children sitting near the windows cannot be exposed to draughts, and except in warm weather such rooms cannot be thoroughly ventilated in this way. The device of fitting boards under the window, so as to separate the sashes a few inches in the middle and admit fresh air, without creating a current, is useful in hospitals, but does not meet the requirements of a crowded school room. The ventilation of school buildings ought not to be left to chance, but should be systematically provided for. Children are tender plants that thrive in fresh air, and droop, spindle and wither in foul air. One of the best proofs that the air in school rooms is too unfit for children to breathe is the prevalence of near-sightedness among the older pupils. The eye, being the most delicate bit of mechanism of the human body, requires the best blood which the physical system can command, and consequently suffers more than any other organ when the blood is vitilated by the inhalation of foul air year after year. To near-sightedness are added other positiye indications of the paleful effects of carbonic acid in the school atmosphere—the pale faces and impaired health of the children and the chronic headaches and nervous depression of the teachers. The subject is one of vital importance to the public, and any authoritative information which may be forthcoming ought not to be capriciously suppressed.

His New Flying Machine.

An enterprising saloon keeper on Grand River avenue is always on the lookout for any novelty that may draw customers and perhaps this fact may have been known to a bland-faced old man who entered the place the other day and confidentially began :

'If I could draw a crowd of one hundred men to your place here, what sum would you be willing to give me.'

'What do you mean ?' asked the saloonist.

'If it was known that I had in my possession a flying-machine, and that it was to fly from your door here on a certain day and hour, wouldn't the novelty be sure to collect a thirsty crowd ?'

'Yes, I think so. If you have a flying-machine and want to show it off here to-morrow night, I'll give you a dollar, and if the machine is a success, perhaps I'll buy it.'

'Well, sir,' continued the old man, in a whisper, 'I've got the boss ! She flies from the word go. All I've got to do is to toss her into the air, and away she sails. It's right down fine, and no chance for failure, and I'll be on hand at seven o'clock to-morrow night.'

The matter became noised about, and next evening there was fifty or sixty people in and around the saloon to witness the experiment. The old man arrived on time, having some sort of a bundle under his arm, and he collected his dollar of the saloonist and secured several 'treats' from the crowd. When everything was finally ready he stood on the walk clear of the spectators and said :

'Gentlemen, I warrant this thing to fly. I didn't invent it myself; but I am now acting as State agent to dispose of county rights. Hundreds of men have spent years of anxious thought and thousands of dollars in seeking to invent flying machines, but this one leads them all. She will now fly. Please stand back and give her a chance to rise.'

The crowd fell back, and the man let fall the cover hiding his bundle, and gave an old speckled hen a toss in the air. She uttered a dismal squeak, sailed this way and that, and finally bumped against a telegraph post, and settled down on the roof of a low shed, cackling in an indignant manner at being turned loose in a strange neighborhood. It was fully a minute before the crowd was sure that it was a hen, and during that minute the old man is supposed to have run a distance of seven blocks. A few tried to overhaul him, but it was no use.—M. Quad.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
